What is a startup accelerator program?

A startup accelerator program is a program designed to help the new edge startups by providing them funding, mentorship, connections, and resources in exchange for equity or other commitments. The duration of this program is 3-6 months and it helps the startup to improvise their business model, and scalability to attract more investors.

How does the startup accelerator program work?

Let's understand the workflow of the startup accelerator program by the following steps: -

1. Application & Selection:

- Startups apply to the accelerator program by applying.
- The program reviews applications and shortlists promising startups.
- Founders go through interviews & pitching rounds before final selection.

2. Funding & Onboarding:

- Selected startups receive seed funding (usually in exchange for equity).
- Startups join the program and get access to mentors, resources, and workspaces.

3. Training & Mentorship:

- Founders receive intensive training on business strategy, product development, fundraising, and scaling.
- One-on-one mentorship sessions with industry experts and successful entrepreneurs.

4. Product Development & Market Validation:

- Startups work on refining their product, testing the market, and gaining initial traction.
- Regular feedback sessions help them pivot or improve their strategy.

5. Networking & Growth Support:

- Startups connect with investors, partners, and other entrepreneurs.
- Access to corporate networks, potential customers, and business advisors.

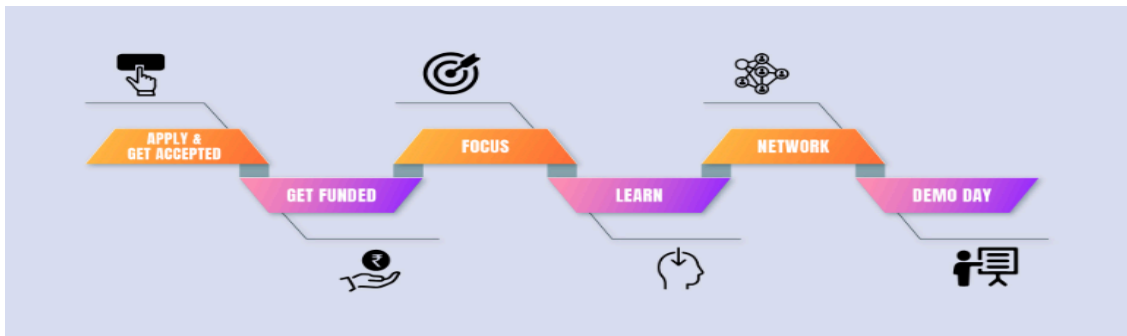

6. Demo Day:

- Startups pitch their business to investors and key stakeholders.
- They try to secure follow-on funding to continue scaling their startup.

7. Post-Program Support:
